

Queen for a Day...Or at Least 50 Minutes

Getting swept away is easy in a place like The Spa at The Brown Palace – one of Denver’s only Four Star spas. Since opening its doors in 1892, The Brown Palace has pampered guests with natural spring water drawn from its own artesian well. Requiring no added purifiers, the sparkling spring water emerges from deep below the hotel’s foundation to serve as the main ingredient at The Spa at The Brown Palace. A 750-foot well taps into this unique feature, naturally protecting the water’s mineral composition from any man-made impurities. This celebrated resource serves as the sole source of water for the spa facility and its many luxury treatments and services.

Encompassing two floors in an area that historically featured Turkish baths, the 5,200-square-foot spa features a private couples and celebrity suite with a dual reclining hydrotherapy tub; six massage and skin treatment rooms; separate men’s and women’s locker rooms with relaxation areas; Swiss showers; steam rooms with aromatherapy; and a nail and hair salon. The gentlemen’s area features a private treatment room, as well as a flat screen television.

A $130,000 renovation completed in August 2008, added even more luxury and opened up the space to accommodate larger groups and bridal parties. Cherry hardwood floors were installed in the corridors; European Touch massaging pedicure chairs were put in place; new manicure tables and hair stations were custom made; and the ladies lounge was expanded to enable more space for lunch services. Healthy, organic lunch and snack options are available from a special spa menu or from the hotel’s Room Service selections.

The Brown Palace signature lemongrass sage product line is featured in-room to guests at the Top of The Brown (floors eight and nine), and is available for purchase in the Spa Boutique.

Complimentary valet parking is provided by the hotel for all spa guests.
